According to St John’s Gospel, John the Baptist performed his baptisms at a place called Bethany-beyond-Jordan, at the northern end of the Dead Sea.

Each year about 3 billion gallons of water enters the Dead Sea from the river Jordan, having travelled downhill from the sea of Galilee which is 600 feet higher. This descent probably accounts for the name Jordan which comes from the Hebrew word meaning ‘to go down’. Perhaps this is what inspired John the Baptist to baptize by total immersion, the method implied in Mark’s Gospel.

John had made people aware of their need for a complete change of heart. God was calling them back to an authentic way of life in keeping with the covenant. John had every confidence in God’s forgiveness and he taught that the right response to a loving, merciful God was to show compassion to others, by sharing with those in need and avoiding exploitation. Baptism in the Jordan, through which the children of Israel had passed into the promised land, would be the sign of this radical conversion to God.

The baptisms that John performed in this obscure place were a clear departure from Old Testament purification rites. John was conscious that he was doing something new; but even as he performed these baptisms ‘of repentance for the forgiveness of sins’, he was already aware of something greater to come. In today’s Gospel he tells the people ‘I baptize you with water but someone is coming who is more powerful than I am... He will baptize you with water but someone is coming who is more powerful than I am... He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire’.

When Jesus came from Nazareth to be baptized, John immediately recognized him as the one whose coming he had proclaimed because St Matthew tells us that John was reluctant to baptize Jesus. Surely it was he, John, who needed to be baptized by Jesus?

John was quite right that it was he who needed to be baptized by Christ. Jesus did not need baptism. The Sinless One had no need of forgiveness. Why then did Jesus choose to be baptized by John?

One answer we might give lies in the revelation of divine humility. The Son of God not only washed the feet of sinners, he allowed himself to be numbered with them. It is significant that here, at the beginning of Christ’s ministry, the revelation of his divine sonship is also the revelation of the Father and the Holy Spirit. There is a gentle approval in the tender words of the Father and the presence of the Spirit in the form of a graceful dove, as the Son of God submits to baptism with a loving humility. The Christmas season began with the Incarnation which shows God’s love for our humanity. It ends with the feast of Christ’s baptism in which Christ publicly identifies with sinners to the approval of Father and Spirit. He will keep company with sinners to the very end of his life on the cross.

The meaning of Christ’s baptism does not end there because by descending into the waters and re-emerging, Christ symbolically anticipates his coming death and resurrection. And by doing so he sanctifies the waters of baptism providing us with the means to be cleansed of sin and united with him.

That is why Christ instituted the sacrament of baptism and sent out his disciples to baptize in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit.

John’s improvised ritual had a natural and beautiful simplicity. And it is this ritual that Jesus made his own, giving it the power to raise us up to new life.

We know from St Paul’s letters that Jesus’s followers practised baptism as the Lord had directed and that they grasped the connection with his death and resurrection.

So today we remind ourselves that from the moment of our own baptism we are united with Christ, that the Holy Spirit dwells in us and that the Father’s favour rests on us too. In the words of St Gregory of Nazianzus, ‘let us be buried with Christ by Baptism to rise with Him; let us go down with Him to be raised with Him; and let us rise with Him to be glorified with Him.’

Interested in Liturgical Ministries?
Have you ever thought it might be rewarding to be involved in a “closer way” with Mass? Get to know other community members better? Serve the community in a specialized ministry? The following ministries are available for you to consider: greeting (especially at the 4:30 Mass), eucharistic ministry, lectoring, altar serving, and music ministry (singers and instrumentalists). Training is provided and for most ministries you are scheduled about every 3-4 weeks. Students, this is a great way to continue ministry begun in your home parish, or a way to learn how to take part fully in the life of the Church. For non-students, Holy Week falls during Spring Break this year--we are going to need even more “permanent community” members to volunteer for these special liturgies. For info, please contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu.

Joy To the World

Carol

Joy to the World, the Lord is come!
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare Him room,
And Heaven and nature sing,
And Heaven, and Heaven, and nature sing.

Joy to the World, the Savior reigns!
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills and plains
Repeat the sounding joy,
Repeat, repeat, the sounding joy.

He rules the world with truth and grace,
And makes the nations prove
The glories of His righteousness,
And wonders of His love,
And wonders of His love,
And wonders, wonders, of His love.

From Bishop McGrath:

The tragedy in Newtown, Connecticut, has reminded our nation and our world once more that the proliferation of handguns, semi-automatic and other assault weapons is a threat to the life, health and safety of our nation. But Newtown was not the beginning and it will not be the end. The recent statement by the National Rifle Association (NRA) calling for armed guards in every school is an invitation to a domestic form of “mutual assured destruction” (MAD).

Just as the arm’s race of the last 60 years has not resulted in a safer world, so the proliferation of handguns, semi-automatic and assault weapons cannot keep our families and our children safe. As the world’s “super powers” continued to arm themselves, eventually to the point of “mutual assured destruction,” the threat of nuclear cataclysm or the possibility that some rogue nation or individuals might obtain and deploy nuclear weapons increased. Even now, reports of nuclear ambitions of nations such as Iran and North Korea continue. Disarmament has been preached as the new gospel, proclaimed by presidents of both major political parties. It is time now for radical change toward strict gun control, for another form of disarmament.

When the framers of the Constitution included the “right to bear arms” among the freedoms enjoyed by the citizens of the United States, this nation was rural. It was truly a different time. Twenty-First Century American society does not resemble 1789. Perhaps it is time to consider curtailting this right. Individual freedom should be subject to the common good. If this were not the case, there would be no speed limits on our roads and highways, no crosswalks.

It is time to admit that the free availability of guns and ammunition poses a threat to the welfare of our people and that a “culture of violence” has eclipsed “life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness” as enduring values of this nation.

I join my fellow bishops in calling on film producers and video game creators to recognize the extent of violence in movies, television programs and video games, which have desensitized all of us. We must also address the pervasive role of addiction and mental illness in crime.

It is time to change, to increase regulation, even to ban the possession of certain weapons. I echo the words of the Vatican’s Pontifical Council for Peace and Justice, that it is necessary “to impose a strict control on the sale of handguns and small arms. Limiting the purchase of such arms would certainly not infringe on the rights of anyone” (The International Arms Trade, 2006).

In the end, violence itself is a form of domestic terrorism. Now is the time to hear the call to a new sanity. Now is the time to commit ourselves to following the Prince of Peace, who leads us along the path of life and hope.
