Baptisms for the 2011-2012 academic year:
January 29, 2012
May 20, 2012
‘Let those who have wives live as though they had none, and those who mourn as though they were not mourning, and those who rejoice as though they were not rejoicing, and those who buy as though they had no goods, and those who deal with the world as though they had no dealings with it’.

Are these words addressed to us, who turn to Scripture for good news? Or do such startling assertions make sense only in the original historical context? Long ago, about AD 55, Saint Paul was addressing people who had been Christians for little more than five years — is there anything in what he says for us now?

Let’s take a step back, to the beginning of chapter 7: ‘It is well for a man not to touch a woman’ (verse 1). Paul must be quoting something said in the congregation at Corinth, by some supposedly authoritative person. He neither endorses nor dismisses the idea. Sexual drives and needs are so strong that ‘each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband’ (verse 2). Moreover, a husband should give his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife her husband’s (verse 3). There is nothing wrong in being married — just the contrary.

Given what we know about the status of women in the ancient world (and in many societies today), it is instructive that Paul regards husband and wife as absolutely equal in this respect: ‘For the wife does not have authority over her own body, but the husband does; likewise the husband does not have authority over his own body, but the wife does’ (verse 4).

However, here at Corinth, some spouses have high-mindedly chosen to practise celibacy, in order to concentrate on prayer. Far from praising this form of asceticism unqualifiedly, Paul’s advice is not to go in for such abstinence at all — unless the partners do so by consent, and for a set length of time. Then couples should ‘come together again ... so that Satan may not tempt you because of your lack of self-control’ (verse 5).

Denying themselves physical intimacy in order ‘to have leisure for prayer’ (verse 5), a husband or wife — the former more likely, no doubt — would be all but irresistibly tempted to resort to the brothels for which Corinth (as a seaport) was notorious. On the other hand, it is good for the unmarried and widows to remain single, Paul declares — wishing that ‘all were as I myself am’. ‘But if they are not practising self-control, they should marry. For it is better to marry than to be aflame with passion’ (verse 9), as the RSV says.

‘It is better to marry than to burn’, as the King James version puts it. This could mean that the flames of passion are best integrated in marriage. However, the Greek might equally well mean that it is better to marry than to burn in hell: in New Testament times the great ever-smouldering rubbish dump outside Jerusalem represented Gehenna. Famously, one rabbi is quoted as saying to another, as they are walking along a road and see a woman ahead of them, ‘Hurry up and get in front of Gehenna’, meaning that they should get ahead of the woman so that, no longer able to see her, they would be beyond falling into infernal sin.

Whichever way we translate, Paul has a strong sense of the power of our sexual needs and drives and correspondingly of the difficulty of self-control — in the case of women, interestingly, as well as in that of his fellow males. Thus, far from being hostile to marriage and negative about sexual activity, as is sometimes said, Paul might with more justice be regarded as a champion of good sex in marriage.

Of course the personalist ideal of marriage familiar to us in the post-Christian West did not exist in his day. No doubt he took ‘arranged marriages’ for granted. Mutual respect within marriage as Paul conceives it, on the other hand, is radically different from marriages in which wives are regarded as inferior beings, little more than slaves. Perhaps the most challenging thing is Paul’s assumption that marriage is the antidote to otherwise insatiable lust. Even though we inhabit a culture in which pornography spreads almost everywhere — indeed perhaps because we do — doesn’t Paul’s assumption seem shockingly raw and crude, much too ‘carnal’?

Is Paul speaking to a very specific situation that has little to do with us? Does the picture of marriage that Paul evokes belong irretrievably to the past, or are his assumptions about our savagely irrepressible sexuality, as well as about gender equality in marriage, a call to self-examination and judgment, in regard to the ideals as well as the realities with which we are familiar? What does it mean to mourn and rejoice — as though not doing so? Buying and selling as though not doing so?

People go on doing all these things, Paul takes that for granted, he does not prohibit them. The ‘as though’ places all these activities in a context which relativises them, so to speak. These activities can never be ultimate. Everything that Paul’s new Christians do, in the intimacy of sexual life, in sorrow and in joy, even when shopping: all these things, while they may look much the same as ever, are actually radically different since they are done now by people who have been ‘sanctified in Christ Jesus’ (1 Cor 1: 2).

Of course Paul is addressing people with ideals and temptations that may not quite be ours — but there again, as one reflects on all this, isn’t Paul challenging us who count ourselves Christian to see everything — grief and joy, commerce and the market, and above all marriage and sexuality — in the light of what ultimately matters?

Religious Education for Children:
Our program continues on Sunday mornings. The new-parent orientation is today, Sunday, Jan. 22. This program is for registered members of the community whose children are ages 3-13. It includes sacramental preparation. For more information, contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu.

Spanish Mass:
Mass in Spanish will be celebrated today, Sunday, January 22, at 3:00pm in the side chapel of Memorial Church. All are welcome to attend!

Sacrament of the Sick at Masses: (NEW DATE!!!)
We will celebrate this sacrament at all the Masses on Sunday, Feb. 12. Please invite anyone who wishes to receive the sacrament to attend this weekend. The sacrament is also available on an individual basis by contacting one of the parish priests.

New Training for Liturgical Ministers:
We welcome anyone who is interested in joining the choir, serving as lectors, greeters, altar servers, or eucharistic ministers. If you’ve managed to survive the first quarter at Stanford and can now think about the REST of your life, please contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu. Service can take place around your schedule. The rewards for ministry are great—serving the Lord, deepening your bond to the community, making new friends!

Altar Servers:
We are looking for 4 students to help with the ministry of altar serving for the 4:30 Sunday Mass. You would be scheduled about every 4 weeks and trained for special liturgies such as Holy Week, in addition to the Sunday Masses. Altar servers arrive at 3:45 to help with set up. This is a vital ministry to our liturgies, so if you could help out once a month, we would be grateful. For info, contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu.

Greeting Ministers Needed for 4:30 Mass:
We need 6 more friendly faces to complete our greeting ministry roster at the 4:30 Mass. This is such an important ministry, as we welcome all who pass through our doors on Sunday. It is very rewarding, as you have the opportunity to meet the face of Christ present in his people. You would be scheduled approximately every 3-4 weeks. For info, contact Iris Clark, iris.ccas@live.com.

McGrath invites couples celebrating their 25th, 40th or 50th wedding anniversaries (or more) to a Mass celebrating their commitment at the Cathedral Basilica of Saint Joseph on February 4, 2012, at 2:00 p.m. The Mass will be bilingual in English and Spanish, and the couples will have the opportunity to renew their wedding vows. A reception in the Cathedral’s parish hall will follow.

Apostle’s Creed
I believe in God, the Father almighty, Creator of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried; he descended into hell; on the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and is seated at the right hand of God, the Father almighty; from there he will come to judge the living and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy catholic Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting. Amen.
Invocation to Prayer
