Baptisms for the 2012-2013 academic year:
May 5, 2013
The rather long second reading at today’s Mass is about body parts, and the way the variety of different parts of the human body make up a unity. Fairly obvious, you might think; it’s an idea we are quite familiar with. But there is a little more to it than meets the eye, especially when you link it up with what we heard last Sunday, from the earlier part of the same Chapter, when St Paul said that there is a variety of gifts all given by the same Spirit. Even that reading was not as clear as it might have been, because it cut out the opening verses of the chapter, which explained why St Paul started talking about all that in the first place.

The situation seems to have been this. Some Corinthian Christians continued to have spiritual experiences like they used to in their pagan days, being carried away, having ecstatic visions, and suchlike; and they thought themselves more holy and important than those who did not have such experiences. Inevitably this had caused rifts in the community. It is a bit like the earlier problem that Paul had talked about: that some were baptised into CHRIST. Underlying what Paul says here is the profound reality of the Incarnation: God taking on human flesh. The Word was made flesh. We are baptised into the Word made flesh.

Here St Paul joins hands with Matthew and John, who both have their own different ways of stating the same profound truth. Matthew has the parable of the Sheep and the Goats, where Jesus says: 'Inasmuch as you did this to one of the least of these, you did it to me’. And in St John’s gospel, at the Last Supper, Jesus says: ‘I am the vine, you are the branches’. Words such as these lead us into the heart of the mystery of God made man. They help us to see ourselves and one another as we truly are, in Christ.

So too here. He is not content simply to say: Don’t be stuck up and think yourself holy because of your experiences. He grounds what he wants to say on a glimpse into the mystery of God. All good gifts, whatever they may be, come from the one Holy Spirit, and they all complement one another. As they are all gifts, there is no room for human pride, as though it was your own achievement or a sign of your personal holiness. And having said that he goes on to draw this out by using the image of the human body, in which all the various parts, though profoundly different from one another, work together as one whole. The good of one benefits the whole; the suffering of one is shared by the whole.

Of course, nowadays we know much more than Paul did about the intricacy and interdependence of the human body. It’s a far more complex affair than he could ever have imagined. But that does not diminish the value of what he says. In fact he is using the image of the body in a new and quite profound way. It had been a common idea in the time of Paul and earlier that human society, like the human body, is a unity made up of all kinds of different groups and individuals. Generally, though, this image was used by writers and philosophers in antiquity to justify a hierarchy in society: the head is more important than the little toe, so the ruler is more important than the slave. Paul is doing just the opposite. There are varieties of gifts and services and activities in the Christian community, but they are all given by the same Spirit and Lord and God; and so each one is of infinite value as coming from God. As he says: In the one Spirit we were all baptised into one body, Jews or Greeks, slave or free; and we were all made to drink of the one Spirit (1 Cor. 12:13).

Moreover, note what St Paul does, and does not, say. He does not say: Just as the body is a unity made up of different parts, so too is the Church. Instead he says: So it is with CHRIST. ‘Just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with CHRIST’ (12:12). We are not baptised into an organisation that happens to be structured rather like a human body. We are baptised into CHRIST. Underlying what Paul says here is the profound reality of the Incarnation: God taking on human flesh. The Word was made flesh. We are baptised into the Word made flesh.

From: Bishop Patrick J. McGrath:

Once more, particularly virulent strains of flu and other respiratory contagions are manifesting themselves throughout our nation and here at home. Because of this, I have been approached by members of the medical community who have requested that we make a number of temporary adaptations to our celebrations of the Eucharist, so as to foster the health of our worshipping communities.

For this reason, I find it necessary to implement the following steps, to be taken immediately wherever Mass is celebrated in the Diocese of San José.

1. For the duration of the flu/cold/virus season, people should avoid holding hands during the recitation or singing of the Lord’s Prayer.
2. For the duration of the flu/cold/virus season, Holy Communion will be distributed only into the hands of communicants; during this time, Holy Communion will not be distributed on the tongue.
3. For the duration of the flu/cold/virus season, the Sign of Peace should be adapted so as to allow for a greeting that does not involve shaking hands or touching.
4. For the duration of the flu/cold/virus season, all who administer Holy Communion are to wash their hands with an alcohol-based anti-bacterial solution, such as Purell, before and after they administer the Sacrament. This precaution also extends to those who minister to the homebound.
NEWMAN NIGHTS

Presenting the breadth and depth of Catholic Theology, is a theological lecture series that answers of the needs of RCIA, Adult Confirmation, and faith formation for the entire CCAS Community and environs.

Upcoming topics for Newman Nights:

January 29: What’s a Catholic to Do? Navigating Tensions between Conscience and Magisterial Teaching. Catholic tradition affirms conscience as our “most secret core and...sanctuary,” where God’s voice “echoes in [our] depths.” We must never violate conscience. Yet on any number of difficult questions, Catholics might find themselves at odds with authoritative Church teaching. On this Newman Night, we will discuss Catholic tradition on conscience, put together a “tool kit” for formation of conscience, and consider how to negotiate hard questions with integrity as Catholics of conscience. Lisa Pullam D.V.M., Th.D. teaches moral theology at the Jesuit School of Theology at Berkeley. Research interests include Virtue Ethics, medical and sexual ethics, the intersection of ethics and spirituality, and Ignatian spirituality. Published articles include: “Sex in 3-D. A Telos for a Virtue Ethics of Sexuality,” “Humility and Magnanimity in Spiritual Guidance,” and “Why Ordination Matters: A Reflection from Jamaika.” Readings in Moral Theology #16. Virtue Ethics, co-edited with Charles E. Curran, was published by Paulist Press in 2011. Her previous book, The Virtue of Humility: A Thomistic Apologetic was published by the Edwin Mellen Press in 2009. In 2008, she climbed Mt. Kilimanjaro. The view from the top is just gorgeous.

February 5: In the Bedroom: an Introduction to Catholic Sexual Ethics. Fr. Jerry Coleman, SS, PhD, Adjunct Professor in Moral Theology, Santa Clara University.

February 12: Rise and Shine: Living Lent and Easter Fr. Nathan Castle, OP, Pastor/Director, CCAS.

INTERESTED IN LITURGICAL MINISTRIES?

Have you ever thought it might be rewarding to be involved in a “closer way” with Mass? Get to know other community members better? Serve the community in a specialized ministry? The following ministries are available for you to consider: greeting (especially at the 4:30 Mass), eucharistic ministry, lectoring, altar serving, and music ministry(singers and instrumentalists). Training is provided and for most ministries you are scheduled about every 3-4 weeks. Students, this is a great way to continue ministry begun in your home parish, or a way to learn how to take part fully in the life of the Church. For non-students, Holy Week falls during Spring Break this year–we are going to need even more “permanent community” members to volunteer for these special liturgies. For info, please contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu.

GREETING MINISTERS NEEDED FOR 4:30 MASS:

We need 6-8 new greeting ministers to help us welcome those who come through our doors for the 4:30 Sunday Mass in Memorial Church. Could you be the welcoming face to our community and visitors? Training is provided. You would be scheduled about every 3 weeks. Please contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu, if you can help with this important ministry.

PIANO ACCOMPANISTS NEEDED:

We are looking for 2-3 piano accompanists to work with the 4:30 and 10:00pm choirs. The commitment would be bi-monthly, arranged around your schedule. Sight-reading and accompanying skills are necessary. Choir members, directors, and congregation will all be grateful to you for sharing your gifts with the community. For info, contact Teresa, tpleins@stanford.edu.

LITURGY OF THE HOURS:

8:20-8:45am, Mo-Fr, East side stairwell of Memorial Church. “It is now the hour for us to rise from sleep.” (Rom 13:11) Come consecrate your day to our Lord by praying the Liturgy of the Hours before class! We first hear a short reading from the Roman Martyrology and then pray in accordance with the wisdom of St. Benedict (d. 543). Contact George vidal@stanford.edu for more information.

THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME
JANUARY 27, 2013

First Reading    Nehemiah 8:2-4a, 5-6, 8-10
Ezra the priest stood before the people and proclaimed the book of the law. He declared the day holy and urged the people to rejoice.

Second Reading   1 Corinthians 12:12-30
The body is one and has many members, but all members, though many, are one body. Further, each part is indispensable. So it is with Christ’s body, we though many, are one.
Apostle’s Creed

I believe in God, the Father almighty, Creator of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried; he descended into hell; on the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and is seated at the right hand of God, the Father almighty; from there he will come to judge the living and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy catholic Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting. Amen.

Gospel

Luke 1:1-4; 4:14-21

Returning to Nazareth, Jesus entered the synagogue and read from the prophet Isaiah. After reading, Jesus proclaimed “Today this Scripture passage is fulfilled in your hearing.”
I am the bread of life which has come down from heaven.
Whoever eats this bread will live forever.

Is this not Jesus, son of Joseph? We know his parents well.
How is he saying he came down from heaven?

No one can come to me
Unless the Father which has sent me draws him to me.

It is written: "God will teach them,
only one who is from God has seen the Father and so can come to me.

Your ancestors, in order to live,
ate manna in the desert (but) died.
Anyone who eats this bread shall live forever.

Communion

2. Someone calls us each by name, knowing our disguise,
3. Listen to that still, small voice calling us to life,
4. How can our hope endure this endless night?
5. To hear and act in faith, to realize that
6. To make a conscious choice to live in Christ.
