Baptisms for the 2013-2014 academic year:
• May 18, 2014 (prep May 10)
A few more years ago than I care to think about, I graduated from Stanford University with a degree that put Asia in my path. At the time, I had a couple of good job offers to move back East—something I was very tempted to do. Yet my experience as a grad student in China and the great need that I saw there among other college students and young adults kept daring to pull me back to Asia. I had gotten this crazy idea in my head that if I went back to Asia, I could help address the need that I saw there—psychological, emotional, spiritual, sometimes just offering hope and helping people find their way—and really make a difference in people’s lives.

It wasn’t long before I started an educational nonprofit to do just that. But I wasn’t a missionary. On my last few dimes, I would head over to Asia, where I’d spend most of my time giving presentations and workshops helping college students and young adults discover their purpose in life, learn to deal with struggles and hardship, find hope in the midst of despair, and be a source of encouragement and support, offering help where I could. But I wasn’t a missionary.

In going to church I found spiritual sustenance, but found I wasn’t connecting at the level I wanted with the local people. So I started going to Mass in the local language. Suddenly, I was meeting people regularly who began to open up their lives to me and share their faith with me as I would with them. And somewhere along the line, the Holy Spirit would give me the words I needed to offer them strength, hope and wisdom. But I wasn’t a missionary.

Not long after I started going to Asia, the people I met around me would start inviting me into their homes and their Bible studies and to meals with them and their friends at their favorite local restaurants where we’d talk long into the night about faith and life and where God is leading each of us, before racing to make it home on the last bus or train. But I wasn’t a missionary.

Pretty soon, people and pastors were asking me to get more involved in teaching and leading activities in faith formation and in learning important life skills. I even began fielding requests to travel into the countryside to address other great needs there with education and training. Almost always on a shoestring budget or lack thereof. I know what it’s like to beg for $1.50 in a foreign tongue just to catch a bus to town and to sleep on a cold cement floor in the middle of winter completely jetlagged after having just come off a plane all because of some greater calling God was leading me to in a foreign culture. But I wasn’t a missionary.

As a Catholic, Christian missionaries came in three types: priests, sisters and Protestants. So I wasn’t a missionary. Missionaries stand on street corners or soap boxes with a Bible in one hand and a megaphone or sheaf of pamphlets in the other. So I wasn’t a missionary. In some of the places I went in Asia, saying the name of God wasn’t an option. So I wasn’t a missionary. I’m just a person God called to Asia to share the hope and love of Jesus Christ with all those I meet in whichever way the Holy Spirit provides. So I’m just Tricia, a young woman who has opened herself up to God’s will for her life…to be a foreign lay missionary in Asia.

As Christians, we are all called by Jesus to be missionaries of the Gospel. What kind of missionary are you?

Tricia Bølle is the founder of the St. Francis Xavier Lay Missionary Society, dedicated to the formation, sending and support of Catholic lay missionaries to share the love of Jesus Christ with others in Asia. To support this ministry or learn how to become involved, please visit www.laymissionary.org or contact Tricia at tricia@laymissionary.org. Thanks and God bless.
Your Marriott Points Can Help!
Do you have Marriott Rewards points that you would be willing to donate to a mother and her child, a Palo Alto High School senior? They have become homeless and are living in their car so they can have shelter nearby until the student graduates. The mom and child are committed to remaining together and the available nonprofit shelters and affordable nearby apartments would require that they be housed separately. This is a short-term need, just until the senior graduates in June from PALY. They have available housing that will work for them after graduation. If you are interested in helping this family, please contact Diane Guinta at DRGuinta@sbcglobal.net for details on how you can donate your points. Please entitle your email “PALY family”. Thank you!

Donations for a Local Women’s Shelter:
Stanford Students have opened “Heart and Home” Women’s Shelter, a student run shelter that provides women with beds, meals and supportive services. They are requesting donations of cleaning supplies, unused toiletries, bedding and on-the-go food options. Donations can be dropped off in a box outside the Catholic Community offices on the 3rd floor of Old Union. Learn more at www.hhcollab.org/get-involved.

ROLLING STONE, SALT AND LIGHT:
WHAT’S LOVE GOT TO DO WITH IT?

Rolling Stone Magazine’s new issue features Pope Francis on its cover. The article within is titled, “Pope Francis: The Times They Are A-Changin’” and purports to describe what marks our current pontiff’s difference from those before him. Without getting into the merits of the article, it is still striking that Pope Francis has become such a cultural and media sensation around the world. Many commentators have posited that the Pope is “changing the conversation.” When we think of conversation, we naturally focus on the spoken word. Is the Pope saying anything different doctrinally? Will there be real change in our Church? But what I think has really captured people’s imaginations is often less what he is saying, but rather, what he is doing: his choice of name, his simple lifestyle, his washing the feet of women and non-Catholics on Holy Thursday, his obvious love for people when he joins them in a “selfie” or takes them up in the Pope mobile to ride around St. Peter’s Square with him. We love people who love people. We can see how he loves.

As Christians we all endeavor to live like Christ. However, it is often difficult to merge our spiritual ideals and how we actually live out our daily lives. When we see someone who could be tempted to live an affluent life and who chooses instead to live in community with his fellow priests we are inspired. When we see someone who has been elected leader of the Catholic world and whose first act is to humbly ask for a blessing from the crowd, we know we are seeing someone truly embodying humility and service. We thirst for such inspiration in our daily lives because it is often difficult to see how we actually can live the life Jesus tells us to live.

This Sunday’s readings are overflowing with stewardship messages. Our first reading, from the Book of Isaiah, instructs us to “Share your bread with the hungry, shelter the oppressed and the homeless, clothe the naked….” In doing so, he says, “Then your light shall break forth like the dawn.” In this Sunday’s Gospel, Jesus explains that “You are the Salt of the earth” and “You are the light of the world…. Your light must shine before others.” As the United States bishops wrote in their 1992 stewardship pastoral, “Jesus does not waste time proposing lofty but unrealistic ideals; he tells his followers how they are expected to live. The Beatitudes and the rest of the Sermon on the Mount prescribe the lifestyle of a Christian disciple.” Good stewards carry God’s light in their heart and let it shine through in the way they treat others: with love. If we love, we don’t let others live in poverty while we live in affluence. When we love, we don’t let others remain disenfranchised while we are accepted. When we love, we don’t put ourselves first. We act for others. We don’t mouth platitudes. We personify what we believe. As Paul writes in the second reading: “My message and my preaching were not with wise and persuasive words, but with a demonstration of the Spirit’s power…” Let us all be the salt and light and demonstrate the Spirit’s power.

Gathering

Lead Me, Guide Me
D. Akers

I believe in God,
the Father almighty,
Creator of heaven and earth,
and in Jesus Christ,
his only Son, our Lord,
who was conceived by the Holy Spirit,
born of the Virgin Mary,
suffered under Pontius Pilate,
was crucified, died and was buried;
he descended into hell;
on the third day he rose again from the dead;
he ascended into heaven,
and is seated at the right hand of God,
the Father almighty;
from there he will come to judge
the living and the dead.

Apostle’s Creed

1. We praise you, we bless you, we adore you, we glorify you, we give you thanks for your great glory, Lord God, heavenly King, O God, almighty Father.

Verse 2

2. Lord Jesus Christ, only Begotten Son, Lord God, Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world. Rejoice and be glad, for the Kingdom of heaven has come near.

Verses

I am weak and I need thy strength and power to help me o’er my weakest hour. Help me through the dark when Satan and sin oppress. I am putting out thy Light to see, Lord, just always darkness thy face to see. Lead me, oh Lord, lead me.

Gloria

Mass From Age To Age
C. DeSilva

Glorious, glorious to God, glorious to God, and on earth peace to people, peace to people, people of good will.

First Reading

Isaiah 58:6-10

Isaiah prophesied: share bread with the hungry. Shelter the homeless. Clothe the naked. Do not turn away from your own. Then your light will shine forth like the dawn.

Second Reading

1 Corinthians 2:1-5

Paul’s teaching did not come from himself, but from the “convincing power of the Spirit.” So the faith he passed on rests not on human wisdom, but on the power of God.

Gospel Acc.

Celtic Alleluia: O’Carroll / Walker

Jesus called his disciples the “salt of the earth” and “the light of the world.” He cautioned them not to let the salt lose its flavor and not to put a cover on the light, but to let it shine.

Gospel

Matthew 5:13-16

Alleluia: O’Carroll / Walker

1. We believe in God, the Father almighty, Creator of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried; he descended into hell; on the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven, and is seated at the right hand of God, the Father almighty; from there he will come to judge the living and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy catholic Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting. Amen.
