fr Aelred Connelly invites us to allow Christ to free us from the paralysis of sin.

The local football team from my part of Fife, Dunfermline Athletic, are nick-named 'The Pars', supposedly short for paralytic, from a period in the past when their fortunes were at a very low ebb. The paralytic in today's gospel story was unable to do anything for himself. He is carried on a stretcher by four men who strip the roof above Jesus and lower the paralytic before him.

Those gathered around Jesus expect a physical healing, but Jesus on his mission brings a much greater gift, the healing of the wounds of sin, which cuts us off from a relationship with our heavenly Father. This is foretold in today's psalm, 'The lord will help him on his bed of pain, he will bring him back from sickness to health. As for me, I said "Lord, have mercy on me, heal my soul for I have sinned against you."'

Like the paralytic in the Gospel, we are unable to do anything but confess our sins before the Lord. Healing and mercy come from him alone. 'Seeing their faith, Jesus said to the paralytic, "My child, your sins are forgiven."' He speaks as from the heart of the Father. Through his forgiveness and mercy, we become children of God, but this can only come through faith in his only Son, who has authority on earth to forgive sins. This is at the very heart of today's Gospel message. Jesus does indeed have the power to forgive sins.

The accusation in the hearts of the scribes is, in essence, what will send Jesus eventually to his death on the Cross. 'How can this man talk like that? He is blaspheming. Who can forgive sins but God? Yes this is happening in their very midst, proved by the miracle of physical healing. The paralytic goes off home restored in body and soul. So prophesies Isaiah in today's first reading: 'See, I am doing a new deed, even now it comes to light, can you not see it?' The people in the Gospel praise God saying, 'We have never seen anything like this.' The deeper reality can only truly be seen with the eyes of faith.

This is not just God blotting out or not remembering our sins, but a making new of all things through the death and resurrection of Jesus. Paul assures us of this in today's second reading from the second letter to the Corinthians. 'Remember, it is God himself who assures us all, and you, of our standing in Christ, and has anointed us, marking us with his seal and giving us the pledge, the Spirit, that we carry in our hearts.' These are the gifts of faith, hope and charity, received in Baptism, further strengthened by the Sacrament of Confirmation, and nourished by receiving the Body and Blood of Christ in the Holy Eucharist, are restored in the Sacrament of Reconciliation, most appropriately celebrated in the coming season of Lent.

During this time, and indeed throughout the Church's year, we follow the public ministry of Jesus as he preaches the Good News of the Kingdom of God, especially to those who experience being cut off for whatever reason from the loving mercy of God. In the early chapters of Mark's Gospel, we have seen Jesus choosing his closest followers sending them out in their turn to become fishers of men. St Dominic did the same with his earliest companions to preach the good news of salvation.

The same task and vocation is there for those of us following both Jesus's and Dominic's footsteps today. As I said to the young men of our small group-Masses in the prison where I work, it is in their interest to pray for an increase in vocations to the priesthood, the permanent diaconate and the religious life. Their future access to the sacramental life of the Church may well depend on it. It is just one of the places where the preaching of the healing mercy of God is so needed in our time.

When we enter the Order of Preachers, we are asked, 'What do you seek?' and we answer 'God's mercy and yours'. It is only by being aware of the need for God's mercy that we are also made aware of the need to be merciful to our fellow human beings, and in turn probably to receive mercy from them. Only through that mercy can we be freed from the paralysis that comes from sin and the hardening of our hearts. God be merciful to me, a sinner.

Registration for RECongress 2012 is only $70 and there will be additional expenses for lodging and transportation. For more information and to register, please visit <http://recongress.org/>. Lourdes Alonso will coordinate carpools and provide information on lodging. We welcome any assistance with contacts in the Los Angeles area that could help provide housing. Please email Lourdes if you have any questions at lalonso@stanford.edu.

If you care about how the past has influenced the present, look here:

When a small group of students founded a Catholic club at Stanford in 1903, no one could have predicted how a small off-site gathering would grow successively into a Newman Club and ultimately into a large Catholic Community located at the center of campus.

Put this coming April 17 on your calendar to hear about the history of our welcoming liturgy, lively music, and flourishing engagement in programs that foster both spiritual growth and community service. More information on panelists and content will follow, but remember this date and time:

Our Sunday afternoon series continues with a talk on FORGIVENESS; "To Forgive or Not to Forgive: A Road to Happiness" led by Fr. Patrick LaBelle, OP. Growth in the Spirit is something that comes when we are at peace within ourselves and with the people and world around us. Getting to that peace is never easy. The Gospel mandate to "Love One Another" is not a suggestion. Rather it is the only certain way to finding peace. We will look at the most available means to that love: FORGIVENESS. Won't you join us at 2:00 pm for this thoughtful discussion?

"Thank you for inviting me to partake in this opportunity to provide food and conversation to these women. They were all very nice and grateful for our cooking and baking. I was more than happy to share God's love with these women and just sit down with them to show them that they are not alone. They were all so thankful for the dinner we had made them, and they were pretty enthusiastic about sharing stories with us all. I'm also glad that I got to spend more time with my friends, while getting to know Lourdes and John as well." - AIG

Life and Family Initiatives

The Catholic bishops of California are supporting two proposed initiatives for the November 2012 ballot: the Parental Notification Initiative (PNI), which would require that parents be notified when a teenage girl aged 12-17 seeks an abortion, and the SAFE California Initiative, would replace the death penalty with a sentence of life imprisonment without possibility of parole. The convergence of these two initiatives presents a "unique teaching moment" on vital issues of life, dignity, and family, according to the bishops. Bishop McGrath has directed every parish to participate in the effort to gather signatures for both of these initiatives, before and after all Masses, on the weekends of February 18/19 and 25/26. For more information, including contact information for the campaigns, please visit the diocesan webpage at www.dsj.org/LifeandFamilyInitiatives.
