Stewardship is often referred to in the wonderful alliterative words Time, Talent and Treasure. In Christian Stewardship terms, these categories are often used in terms of Prayer, Service and Sharing. Prayer is about our relationship with God and, as with most of our relationships, it’s not always smooth sailing. For some, prayer comes easily. But for many of us, it’s definitely a work-in-progress. Take, for example, Fr. Michael J. Allelo, Diocesan priest at St. Philomena in Baton Rouge, Louisiana:

For the past 15 years I’ve been attempting to figure out how to pray. I’ve searched for every “Praying for Dummies” book published, but I’ve come to learn they aren’t much help. Everyone has suggestions on how to pray, from the great spiritual writers to my grandmother. Ultimately it’s up to each of us to determine what prayer style works best.

I’ve spent a great deal of time and energy creating the perfect prayer space: comfortable chair, low lamplight, sacred images, live plants, water feature, and plenty of prayer aids including my journal, Bible, and prayer cards with favorite quotes of saints. In the end, I’ve learned that all I need is a quiet place without any technology.

Typically prayer begins my day, before I have time to be distracted by the busyness of life. Once the coffee has dripped, I’ll grab a cup, find a comfortable place to sit, and be present to the God of Wonders that surrounds us. I’ve found when I’m able to ease into the day with prayer, I’m much more likely to be attentive to God. If it’s a comfortable morning I find myself on the back porch, listening to the birds greet the day, with the fountain trickling in the background. I like to begin with a few minutes of meditation, a simple breathing activity to enter into my prayer time. I close my eyes, concentrate on the pace and depth of my breath, and say silently: “Breathe in God’s peace and love, breathe out any frustration or worry.”

Recently I’ve begun to use the examen that St. Ignatius Loyola taught his followers. Reviewing the previous day allows me to see where I may have missed God throughout the hustle, and it offers me an opportunity to see where I could have been more Christ-centered or joyful. In the evening, I’m typically pretty exhausted and simply want to relax, so I use the mornings to refocus and review. I often conclude my time by calling to mind all those who have asked me to pray for them.

When asked about prayer, Pope John Paul II once said, “Pray any way you like, so long as you do pray.” That’s comforting for someone like me who has gone through many prayer phases. While attending college and searching for direction in my life, I spent a great deal of time in the adoration chapel at a nearby parish, journaling and begging God to show me the way. Then there was a praise and worship period where I’d listen to music that offered a message of hope or encouragement. Music truly lifted my prayer to a new level and still does today. In the seminary I’d huddle in the chapel with fellow seminarians, praying the liturgy of the hours. Community prayer was never very fruitful for this extrovert; I need the quiet of my room to truly focus.

For years I’d set a kitchen timer for at least 30 minutes of prayer time, but I’ve learned to trust my heart. Prayer is a discipline that requires my time for it to be fruitful, but each day is different, and God can work wonders. Some days 10 minutes can feel like an hour, and other days I can sit for an hour and feel like I’ve accomplished nothing.

After six years of priesthood, I’ve learned that parishioners expect me to love their devotions and prayer forms, to pray as they do. But the beauty of our church is our diversity. While their prayer may not be my own, I’m uplifted by their commitment to prayer and, in particular, their commitment to pray for me.

The Catholic Community at Stanford is a parish and campus ministry operating as a guest of Stanford University.

Please Return Your Rice Bowls:
During Lent, our parish community has prayed, fasted and given alms with a special focus on the poorest members of our global community. Through our Lenten prayers and donations, we have touched the lives of millions of people served by Catholic Relief Services, our representative to the poorest communities in the world. Please return your Rice Bowl at an upcoming Sunday Mass or to our Catholic Community offices during the week. Thank you for your generosity.

Divine Action And The Laws Of Nature:
Science views the universe as governed by relationships that can be captured by scientific models. Is there room for an acting God in this worldview? Correlatively, are there laws for us to discover, or do we create them in order to describe natural phenomena? The guest lecturer for our course in Religion and Science in Dialogue will be Robert J Russell of the Center for Theology and the Natural Sciences, Berkeley. Guests are welcome with the permission of the instructor, Father Paul Crowley S.J. (pcrowley@scu.edu)

Gelpi Reading Group:
Tuesday, May 6th at CasaGelpi (870 Tolman Drive) on caps at 7:30. “Showings” is one of the great text of Christian spirituality, written by a 14th century English woman contemplative who had a series of mystical experiences of Jesus’ immediate and personal presence. “Showings” narrates these visions and reflects on what they reveal. The text is available in a Kindle edition as well as paperback.

There are several translations from Julian’s Middle English. The most common and cheaply available translation, from 1901, is by Grace Warrack. A more modern translation and scholarly edition is available in the Paulist Press series Classics of Western Spirituality under the title "Showings,” edited by Edmund Colledge & James Walsh, with a long, thorough, quite academic introductory commentary by the translators. There are 2 texts by Julian, and both are included in most editions. The Long Text, as it is called, would be, for our purposes, the one you need to pay most attention to. It is not actually long, but is perhaps 3 times longer than the Short Text. Julian is an extraordinary woman and the text is an extraordinary read and is, as I said, one of the glories of Christian spirituality. Good Easter and post-Easter reading.

We’ll be reading Julian’s “Showings” in conjunction with the poems by DENISE LEVERTOV as a contemporary meditation by one of our major poets on Julian’s text and experience. Denise’s poems consist of the sequence of 6 poems under the title “THE SHOWINGS: JULIAN OF NORWICH” and a separate poem called “ON A THEME FROM JULIAN’S CHAPTER XX.” All of those poems first appeared in the volume “Breathing the Water.” However, the best way to get them is in a selection that she made from her poems on religious themes; that little selection is titled “THE STREAM AND THE SAPPHIRE,” and it is available in paperback and in a Kindle edition. The Julian poems are also available, of course, in Denise’s recently published “Collected Poems,” in hardcover and also in a reasonably priced Kindle edition.

Let me also mention a wonderfully enlightening spiritual and cultural biography of Julian, with illustrations and commentary on the text: “JULIAN’S GOSPEL,” by Veronica Mary Rolf, also available in Kindle. It gives us a good idea of who this woman was and of the world in which she lived and had visions and wrote.

We welcome all singers and instrumentalists to take part in the music ministries of the community. Each liturgy has its own music group, with various rehearsal times. Peter proclaimed that Jesus came with miracles, wonders, and signs so that people could know of God's love.

Psalm 104

Send Out Your Spirit

D. Haas

I believe in God,
the Father almighty, Creator of heaven and earth,
and in Jesus Christ,
his only Son, our Lord,
who was conceived by the Holy Spirit,
born of the Virgin Mary,
suffered under Pontius Pilate,
was crucified, died and was buried;
he descended into hell;
on the third day he rose again from the dead;
he ascended into heaven,
and is seated at the right hand of God,
the Father almighty;
from there he will come to judge the living and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the holy catholic Church,
the communion of saints,
the forgiveness of sins,
the resurrection of the body,
and life everlasting. Amen.

Two disciples bound for Emmaus were joined by Jesus. They finally recognized him in the breaking of the bread.
